HOW-TO

Connect Claude to Gmail, Calendar and Drive.

Three connections, three jobs to try this afternoon.

SWIPE ››

01 / 06

1. Connect your Google account

Open Claude settings, find Connectors, click Connect next to Gmail, Google Calendar and Google Drive, then sign in to Google and approve.

START WITH

Menu names move. Look for the word Connectors.

02 / 06

2. Gmail: sort your inbox

Paste: List emails from the last two days that need a reply from me, most urgent first. Draft replies to the top three and save them as drafts. Do not send.

START WITH

You read the drafts and press send yourself.

3. Calendar: find the time

Paste: Look at my calendar next week. Find three one-hour slots with 30 minutes either side, between 9am and 5pm, and tell me the busiest day.

START WITH

Then ask Claude to add the one you pick.

04 / 06

4. Drive: draft a quote

Paste: Find my price list and my three latest quotes in Drive. Write a new quote for [customer] for [job]. Show where each price came from and flag guesses.

START WITH

Check every figure against your own price list.

What it could give back

Ten minutes a day hunting for emails, slots and files is 40 hours over 48 weeks. Halve that and it is about 20 hours. Illustrative, so time your own week.

START WITH

Start with the job that eats the most time.

One thing to watch

Start with drafts and lists. Claude asks for your approval before sending email or sharing files by default, so leave that on.

> START WITH
>
> Check what your own plan shows.

Connect one.
Try one job.
Keep what works.

Want help setting up AI for your business? We offer a free 30 minute AI audit. Details in the first comment.

Which takes most of your week: the inbox, the diary or the paperwork?

KAIZEN CONSULTING

kaizenaiconsulting.com